

THE BEVERAGE COMPANION

A GUIDE TO WINES, LIVENERS & HOT PICK ME UPS

BY THE DEVONSHIRE

THE DEVONSHIRE HISTORY

PUB WITH A 'NOTORIOUS' PAST.

The Devonshire, previously known as the Duke of Devonshire is more than 200 years old and is a listed grade 2 building. This handsome stone-built pub would not look out of place adjacent to the village green in a Peak District village but it is where it is, on the busy A6 through Belper. Originally a centre for the nail-making industry since Medieval times, Belper expanded during the early Industrial Revolution to become one of the first mill towns with the establishment of several textile mills; as such, it forms part of the Derwent Valley Mills World Heritage Site.

In the early 1980s, the pub gained national notoriety when it introduced topless barmaids for a time.

It's now a period travel inn steeped in history and has been brought up to date with quirkiness and peculiarity by former anti-pasti punk band lead singer Martin Roper, who also runs the Exeter Arms and the Old Silk Mill pubs in Derby.
